We must work together to increase patient access to safe, effective and more-affordable medicines.

AAM advocates on behalf of our members, protecting and enhancing their ability to manufacture, compete and innovate.

AAM educates stakeholders — from lawmakers to the media to patients and providers — about the role of generics and biosimilars in health care.

AAM advises the government and our members how policies affect our industry and the patients we serve.

“Without my generic drugs, which I take every day and every night, I would literally die.”
